That was because your convention was held on Saturday, when a crowd was necessarily in town, many of whom dropped in out of curiosity.

MRS. D. W. MOODY'S

Dress-Cutting and Sewing School

Is now located at 165 Plum st., a few doors above Fourth, and she desires every lady who wishes to learn cutting to call and see her. I would say to the ladies I have a handsome schoolroom and everything convenient to learn how to cut, trim and dress dresses and garments of every description. Our school is divided into two separate departments.

First Department—Is taught the cutting of every part of a dress, cloaks and children's clothes, without the use of paper or patterns. Every one can learn, as there are no calculations to make, no dividing or subtracting to get at the size of the parts. Every calculation is made.

Second Department—Is taught hand-sewing of all kinds, sewing on the machine, the making of dress trimmings of all kinds, cloak-making, waist-fitting and the making of all kinds of garments.

Every young lady can make from one to ten dresses for herself or friend while learning. Now is your time to learn the art of teaching at half price. Every lady that wants to learn D. W. Moody's Tailor System of dress cutting should call and see me. Learn the only system of actual instruction in use that is not a cheat, the only system that cuts a perfect sleeve and dress without trying on.

Ladies attending the Exposition are cordially invited to visit my school. Every lady learning the system is guaranteed a position as soon as she has finished her course of instruction. I am, very truly, Mrs. D. W. MOODY.

165 Plum st., near Fourth, Cincinnati, Ohio. E. R. Ladies living out of the city boarded free. Send for terms.

Ask Us a hard One. "What's the use of lying?" asks the Gazette, as it holds up its innocent hands in holy horror. Not the least use in the world, gentlemen, none in the least. We mention this on your account, as you don't seem to have found it out. Ask us a hard one.

89th O. V. I. Remmon. The annual reunion of the 89th O. V. I. was held last Friday at Frankfort, Ross county, Ohio. About 100 of the Regiment were present, besides many other soldiers, and about 4,000 people turned out to do honor to the old veterans. Judge Forker was to have been the orator, but was unable to meet his old comrades on account of other engagements. Addresses were made by Gen. Hurst, Col. Gilmore, Capt. Gage and others, and a fine dinner was spread by the citizens. Col. Glenn and others from this county attended.

A CARD. Having disposed of my entire stock of clothing, hats and gents' furnishings took to A. Walker & Co., and having connected myself with that firm, I would be pleased to see all my old friends and customers in my new place. Truly thankful for the liberal patronage extended to me by the public, I take great pleasure in saying that in my new position I have greatly increased facilities for the better accommodation of all who desire the best goods for the least money. Respectfully, sep24w4 SOL. FRANKEL.

Another Pioneer Gone. Mr. Wm. Martin, an old resident of Marshall township, and well known in this county, died on the 17th inst., in his 74th year, and was buried in the grave yard at Marshall Friday, September, 19th. He was a life-long Mason, a good citizen, a man of strict integrity, a firm believer in Christianity, and died in the full faith and trust in a crucified and risen Savior.

Do You think We're afraid of You? The amateur journalists, who get out our contemporary up on the corner, are on their ears. They take exceptions to some of our statements in regard to the deliberations of a crowd of Democrats who met at the Court House on Saturday, week before last. If you wouldn't get so funny, but would look up the matter you will find that the miners of the Hocking Valley make even better wages than we stated they did last week. Mr. Dickey certainly said just what we stated. He may have meant 70 cents per ton, but he undoubtedly said 70 cents per day, or else he can't understand your Democratic gibberish. The statement was included to mislead the more rural Democrats who were present and whose abilities or inclinations do not cause them to be as well read as the speaker. And that class evidently largely predominated at the Convention. What hurts you, Mr. Gazette, we told the truth about your old Convention, and we observe by the way you took your seat last week that it made you very tender somewhere.

Civic Newsy. Clin'ton Rep. Ex. Com.

Where all the Boys Are. No citizen of Hillsboro can remember that superb organization, the Thirtieth Regiment Band, without feelings of pride. It is now seven years since it was organized, and two years since it was reorganized, and after winning a brilliant reputation and putting in a term of faithful service, but already the boys that composed it are widely scattered. Where they are and what they are doing now may not be uninteresting news to our readers.

Rollie Harwood travelled last season with the band of Dr. Carver's Wild West Show, and is now located at Elgin, Ill., where he plays solo clarinet in the Elgin Opera House Orchestra.

John Doggett, baritone and double bass player, since leaving this place has been director of the Champion City Band, of Springfield, and is now connected with Foreman's Band and Orchestra, in that place. The latter is one of the most prominent organizations of that city, second only to the Big Six.

Ed Doggett, familiarly known to the boys of the old band as "Nipper," is now playing the bass drum in the First Regiment Band, of Cincinnati.

Ed Meek, who played the glockenspiel, has been visiting at home this summer, but is engaged in teaching music at Tallahassee, Florida.

Charlie Woodrow, who played an alto, has since been Steward at the Insane Asylum at Columbus, but is now a clerk at the Walnut Street House, Cincinnati. He now monkeys with a clarinet.

Scott Holmes hasn't attempted to play a trombone for a long time. He is now one of the most promising young athletes in Cincinnati. His office is with Glidden in the Elks building, West 4th street.

Charles Hinton, alto and clarinetist, is now a M. D., connected with the Oxford (O.) Retreat, a private insane and infirmity Asylum.

Will H. Shade, alto and piccolo player, has been connected with bands in Springfield and Lima, playing the flute in the orchestra at Panrot's famous opera house in the latter place. After traveling with theatrical and minstrel companies, and last season with Cole's Circus Band. During last winter and spring he was connected with the Mozart Orchestra, of Vicksburg, Miss., but spent the past summer with his parents here. He is now with Baird's Minstrels on an eastern tour.

"Jake and Joe"—Weber and Lamphardt—are in Cincinnati. The former leads the Cincinnati Cornet Band, but Joe has been in very poor health for some time and is unable to play with the Great Western Band of which he is a member.

Elwood Nelson, who manipulated the tuba, is now connected with a large glass and queensware house in Burlington, Iowa. Carey Spargur, a lip tenor horn or Bb bass player, is now in Cincinnati, working at painting.

El. F. Ellis, at one time leader of the old band, is now at Elmwood, Ill., and plays hat little.

Otto Huber, who used to play the piccolo, has not been heard from for three or four years, and the lord only knows where he is by this time.

Prof. Horace G. Spargur is now director of Spargur's Ladies Orchestra, at Denver, Colorado.

John Sawyer—the only member of the band who has been called to answer the summons of the grim reaper—sleeps peacefully in our beautiful cemetery. It was always with him and hearts that the band on decoration days used to march past the beautiful place of granite that bears his name. The notes of "Old 74" always seemed to float on the breeze with more than ordinary plaintiveness when the band with solemn tread marched past the grave of John Sawyer. Peace to his ashes.

Messrs. Al Matthews, Jr., James F. Doggett, Walter Ayres, Chas. and Wm. Wiles, Nat DeBrain, Will Harmon, Charlie Lilly, George Rains, Drum Major Will Matthews and John R. Callahan are those members of the old band who are still residents of this city. The latter is now Adjutant of the regiment.

SAD AND SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. J. S. Roush, of Bloomington, Ill., killed by a Runaway Accident.

The following telegram received here last Sunday morning brings the sad intelligence of the sudden death of a former well known citizen of our town:

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 20, 1884. J. S. Roush, Hillsboro, O.

J. S. Roush got killed by a horse in a runaway this evening. En C. Rotan.

No further particulars have yet been received.

Mr. James Roush, a younger brother of the deceased arrived here last Thursday on a visit, having left Bloomington the day before, when his brother was in perfect health. He also received a dispatch Sunday morning from his wife calling him home, but giving no particulars of the accident.

From him we learn that a son of the deceased had recently purchased a span of fine horses, and was in the habit of taking his father out to ride, and it is supposed the team must have run away.

The deceased was formerly engaged in the grocery business in this place, and was well known throughout our county. He removed to Bloomington about sixteen years ago, where he engaged in the wholesale grocery business, and became one of the most prosperous merchants in that city.

At the time of his death he was president of the Third National Bank of Bloomington, and had retired from mercantile pursuits, the grocery business still being carried on by his sons, Ed and Frank.

Mr. Roush was a son of the late Philip and Mahala Roush, was a native of Hamer township, and was about fifty-two years old at the time of his death. He was a prominent member of the M. E. Church during his residence here, but after his removal to Bloomington became connected with the Christian Church, of which his wife is a member. No one stood higher among our business men than Mr. Roush, and none was more universally esteemed and respected by all who knew him. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss, besides a large circle of relatives and friends.

50,000 Hoop-poles Wanted At the Cooper Shop in Hillsboro, on Beach street. Inquire of R. S. RICHARDS.

Mrs. Amy Richards. Amy, daughter of John and Ellen Miller, was born in this county of Highland, September 27, 1828. On the seventh of August, 1862, she was married to Milverne Richards, also of this county, with whom she lived in all the tender endearments of a Christian home until September 17, 1884. Her last illness continued well nigh a year.

As a victim of consumption she knew her end was near, but the struggle to yield up her husband, her son and two daughters was severe and protracted one. But several weeks before her death grace triumphed completely and her will was the will of God. From that day till she left us, her peace flowed as a river. She was converted when only a child of thirteen years, on the camp ground of the old Highland Circuit, situated near the present Brouse Chapel. She at once joined the M. E. Church at Brouse and continued a member there until her death. She was known as a devoted Christian, and as such she died well.

Felbel Still in the Field. Felbel, the popular oldster, has a big new "ad" in this week's News, to which we call special attention. He has this season, brought on the largest stock he has ever before offered, and says he intends to sell goods lower than ever before. Since the addition to his business of the boot and shoe trade last spring, his patronage has largely increased, and he is more than satisfied with the results of the experiment. Gentlemen, youths and boys can now be fitted out at his establishment with complete suits of the most fashionable wearing apparel, including the latest style of hats and caps, as well as boots and shoes, both custom made and of Eastern manufacture, and ladies and Misses can also find every variety of foot-wear. With eighteen years of successful experience in the clothing trade in this place, Mr. Felbel is better prepared than ever before to supply the wants of the public, and is determined to spare no pains to keep the "Temple of Fashion" ahead of all competitors in his line. Read his new "ad" and call and see for yourself.

SAMANTHA. Several of our young folk took in the Caves Saturday.

Mr. Grather, of Manchester, has been with us this week taking pictures.
